Marine Communications and Traffic Services training program

As such, no one else in Canada has a demand for MCTS training and the equipment needed for it, specifically a simulator.

Canadian Coast Guard Search and Rescue and Canadian Coast Guard Auxiliary Evaluation Report

Other new officers require a period of familiarization according to many of those surveyed and some interviewees other than College staff. Improving Performance — Looking Forward The evaluation evidence indicates that there is a potential to further improve the performance of the College in several areas, by addressing some deficiencies, issues or gaps. Extensive use of triangulation was undertaken as an analytical method, where multiple lines of evidence helped corroborate findings.

Integrated Technical Services has a need for specialized training as the Coast Guard deals heavily in communications. Health and Wellness Issues related to mental health consistently emerged in qualitative data, mainly from OTP graduates and current officer-cadets. We offer the course in English and French.

Officer Training Program

CCG regions are not actively involved in outreach, promotion and recruitment for the College.

Marine Communications and Traffic Services training program

The Coast Guard has an obligation to Canadians to ensure that the mandatory service period is appropriate in length. Graduates also suggested that the final sea phase or part of it should take place immediately prior to graduation to ensure the practical knowledge gained is fresh to start their future positions. They are offered from five MCTS centres located at Sarnia Ontario , Prescott Ontario , Québec Québec , Les Escoumins Québec and Iqaluit Nunavut.

Graduates from any marine school, including the College, must meet the same Transport Canada requirements to receive officer certification. Poor communication was noted most frequently relating the lack of clarity or explanation behind decision-making, a perceived lack of openness and transparency, and no effective means for officer-cadets to raise their concerns and suggestions for improvements.

Canadian Coast Guard

The framework will assist in addressing how the College can further contribute to the Coast Guard. The majority of interviews were in person, with only two by phone.
