Secondshiftguide

Hochschild: In the Second Shift, I argued that we are in a stalled revolution — that women have gone into the workforce, that was the revolution, but the workplace they go into and the men they come home to have changed less rapidly, or not at all. Women in the study said that they feel as if they are always on duty- on duty at work and then arriving at home and on duty there too. Adding together time in paid work, child care, and housework, she found that working mothers put in a month of work a year more than their spouses.
