In addition, light walls were designed in the pavilion. Her designs focus on topics related to environmental architecture, climate change and social connections. Should we try to adopt new architecture respecting historical structures? In the Pavilion many different functions were implemented; the most important, in my opinion, is the theater hall with a stage and audience where everyone can express their opinion.

While each island offers unique architectural styles, there are constants across many of the islands that reflect the climate of the region more than the indigenous cultures and colonial powers. Turquoise waters give way to white sand beaches, palm trees, brightly colored homes and shops, and then the azure blue sky.
