How Do Our Values, Beliefs, and Philosophies Form Our Teachers?

For example, at school, we have to do many team projects; most often, team members may come from total different cultural background, and thus always have different opinions about the same thing.

Philosophy Articles

Justice Valuing justice means that you feel a personal sense of responsibility to achieve equality in the world and you feel compassion for those who are not treated fairly. Students should ask professors for help with the terminology of philosophical discourse. I, however, have various influences in my life, which have shaped my values.

Bertrand Russell: the everyday value of philosophy

It is obtained when the desire for knowledge is alone operative, by a study which does not wish in advance that its objects should have this or that character, but adapts the Self to the characters which it finds in its objects.

THE IMPORTANCE OF PHILOSOPHY: AN INTRODUCTORY ADDRESS TO STUDENTS, EDUCATORS, AND PRACTITIONERS

Thomas Jefferson believed that, at most, three poor boys per state should be given that chance. Rather, people assume that whatever their society or culture values pretty much sums up what is important to them as well. People use moral reasoning in an attempt to do the right thing.

Reading Performance Information Data (PID)

Confidence Being confident often helps people trust you and your decisions. Even when an individual has a clear sense of right and wrong, or good and bad, it can be difficult to know what is ethical in a given situation. The modes of instruction engendered by this philosophy, such as the lecture, are only successful, as measured by the test score, for certain children of certain social demographics.
