Mobility

However, CAB and Shaw opposed the addition of the frequency range 470-512 MHz, and wanted LPTV to be given priority over RRBS in possible relocation or frequency changes during the repacking process. For each scenario, the uplink band starts at 698 MHz, which is immediately adjacent to the 700 MHz uplink band, and extends lower in frequency between 10 and 60 MHz.

The State of Broadband Internet in Canada

REF Maintaining tariff-free trade will keep important energy trade relationships intact and benefit North American energy consumers.

The State of Broadband Internet in Canada

Discussion Harmonized use of spectrum. A few areas are the same: scope, national treatment, and MFN treatment. In addition, Scott Henderson is no longer VP, communications at Bell Media.

How and When to Charge HST on Services

The chapter addresses increased modernization through the use of information technology, a single window system for customs documentation and data, and cooperation and enforcement to ensure confidentiality and the accuracy of claims for preferential tariff treatment. To reduce the complexity of the transition plan, LPTV stations will not be added to the channel move sequencing for the regular power TV stations. Furthermore, CAB believed that the increase in ERP should not be restricted to analog stations and that DTV stations should be given an opportunity to modify operating parameters to correct assumptions made during the DTV transition in 2011.

Telecommunications in Canada: Part 1

The FCC was split on this issue for some time; VoIP services that utilized IP but in every other way looked like a normal phone call generally had to pay access charges, while VoIP services that looked more like applications on the Internet and did not interconnect with the public telephone network did not have to pay access charges.

Breakup of the Bell System

But new competition is fragmenting the landscape. Known and unknown factors could cause actual results to differ materially from those projected in the forward-looking statements.
