THE 10 BEST Sights & Historical Landmarks in Ravenna

In theory, he was ruling the former on behalf of the latter, and his followers, who were barbarians Goths and heretics Arians in the eyes of the Romans, were an occupying force that were stationed in the north and away from the old capital. Yet who beneath this night of wars and fears, From tranquil tower can watch the coming years; Who can foretell what joys the day shall bring, Or why before the dawn the linnets sing? Under the rule of Theoderic the Great 493-526, Ravenna was briefly the capital of a power structure that stretched from Spain to the Balkans, but Theoderic still had to maneuver carefully between Rome and Constantinople.
