梁漱溟 1893

Li Hu died before Yuwen Tai's son founded , but was posthumously created the Duke of Tang after Northern Zhou's founding. After Li Shimin defeated Liu, he started a campaign against Wang's Zheng state in fall 620. In summer 626, the Eastern Turkish khaganate was making another attack, and under Li Jiancheng's suggestion, Emperor Gaozu, instead of sending Li Shimin to resist the Turks as he first was inclined, decided to send Li Yuanji instead.

Only then was Emperor Taizong able to move from the crown prince's palace to Taiji Palace. Li Yuanji, who was also often relied on by Emperor Gaozu as a general, supported Li Jiancheng in this rivalry, and often pushed Li Jiancheng toward a more hardline position against Li Shimin, wanting to be crown prince when Li Jiancheng would become emperor. Li Yuanji was given command of much of the army previously under Li Shimin's control, further troubling Li Shimin, who believed that with the army in Li Yuanji's hands, he would be unable to resist an attack.
