The future of the Irish rural landscape The increasing emphasis on heritage, which has both a cultural and economic potential, has informed recent planning legislation in regard to the future of the rural landscape in Ireland. Ingeborg Leister has given a lead in her Tipperary book with a map showing the distribution of forest and its degenerate forms based on the Civil Survey Leister, 1963. DEPARTMENT OF ARTS, Heritage, Gaeltacht and the Islands 1999 , Framework and principles for the protection of the archaeological heritage, Dublin.
