Dark blue title boxes, spine; Dark blue angled front titles. The job of evaluating the truth of these findings, now a half-century old, has gone to many others.

Climate and Man: Part One

With its focus on society and environment, Geography is one of the most popular subjects in formal education and highly relevant to both life-long learning and fulfillment from travel. Here are included inadequate chapters on comfort and disease in relation to climate and health in tropical climates; these might better have been omitted or their places taken by articles prepared by more competent writers. The yearbooks of agriculture are more like snapshots of research in time, of course, but they are thorough snapshots, and they remain classics.
