

Motivation and the disadvantaged trainee - a manual for instructors

Office of Education, Bureau of Adult, Vocational and Technical Education - Employee Training Introduction

A recent study of Vanderbilt instructors who teaching courses related to race, racism and racial justice revealed five common instructional challenges (Bandy, Harbin and Thurber, 2018). The first three categories of difficulty are student beliefs that often surface in class, the last two are difficult types of interaction:

1. Ahistorical and social ideologies (racism is the problem of a few 'bad' individuals)
2. Notions of race as 'otherness' (racism is only relevant to people of color)
3. Post-racial beliefs (racism is a thing of the past)
4. Resistance to faculty authority (you can't teach me about race)
5. Difficult multi-racial dialogues (i.e. microaggressions)
