Thoughts from the Sheepfold: Advent Blessings

If we are to keep awake, then we must begin to consider the presence of the Holy in our daily lives: in a traffic jam, a phone conversation, a search for lost keys. He has served as master of novices for 25 years and as a retreat master for Benedictine communities around the United States. How can we open our eyes? Getting our homes ready for Christmas becomes an outward sign of the true but invisible work of Advent: preparing our hearts.

Pilgrim Road: A Benedictine Journey through Lent

Built in 1885 for the beer baron John H Ballantine, it is the proud reminder of the days when Newark was one of the richest industrial centers in America. Something was happening to Elizabeth as well as to Mary.

On the bustling sidewalks, he introduces us to Isaiah, John the Baptist, and Jesus himself, all speaking their ancient Advent and Christmas messages of peace and hope and good will. Since the only way to achieve this is with God's help, prayer becomes essential for leading the monastic life. He reminds us that the foremost concern of our lives resides in our hearts, the setting of our intentions, and the reading of others' intentions in love.
