1940

The ministers urged the King to leave the country with the government.

The Tragedy of Leopold III

Leopold's surrender was also decried by Winston Churchill. Prince Leopold was born in , the first child of Prince Albert , heir to the Belgian throne, and his consort,. Any further delay will not only entail the end of Belgian but perhaps of Dutch neutrality advantage of the Allies 3.

1940

Un an plus tard, le 29 août 1935, un accident de la route survenu en Suisse, à Küsnacht, plonge la famille royale dans un nouveau deuil et la Belgique perd la reine Astrid, sa « princesse des neiges ».

1940

Deze foto bevestigt nog maar eens hoe het stadsbestuur door gebrek aan opvolging, coördinatie en daadkracht fietsers tot roekeloos gedrag aanzet.

Leopold II

I therefore issue the following orders for the further conduct of, military operations: a An offensive will be planned on the northern flank of the Western Front through Luxembourg, Belgium and Holland, This offensive must be launched at the earliest possible moment in greatest possible strength. . . As a result of this order, the bulk of the Army and Air Force on the Eastern Front was transferred to the West. Niet alleen fietsers trouwens: achter het station rijden automobilisten doodleuk en ongestoord door de werfzone, zelfs tot in de afgesloten Voskenstunnel die domme GPS toch! Leopold wanted to persuade Hitler to release Belgian POWs, and issue a public statement about Belgium's future independence.
