He also drew from mystical philosophy to describe a fundamental state of reality where all subsequent and lower forms emerge. Over the course of development, children learn that they must behave in certain ways in order to fit in with society's expectations and norms. And there is the land, and buildings constructed on and with that land.

What is Jungian Literary Criticism? (with pictures)

Reading Teacher, 61 2 , 124. The stimuli which produce instinctive behaviour are selected from a wide field by an innate perceptual system and the behaviour is 'released'.
