Already we observe, Venerable Brethren, the introduction of that most pernicious doctrine which would make of the laity the factor of progress in the Church.

Digest

And base ourselves on that. It added extra warmth from the animals to the house.

Four Biographical Sketches, by John Morgan (1892)

His ear is as quick as the ear of the hare, or of the deer. As they blot out one commandment, and cut the knot which they cannot untie, so they dispense with other commandments. But, secondly, movent too; such idolothous remainders move us to turn back to idolatry.

Memoir of John Bunyan

Though it be pretended that these days serve to promote piety and devotion, yet we have no warrant from God to observe any of them; nay, it appears to be unlawful to do it: for 1st, God doth quarrel men for using any device of their own for promoting his service or worship, without having his command or warrant for it, as in Deut.
