Gengogaku gairon : Shimmura, Izuru, 1876

The author's interest centers on pre-Restoration bibliographies in the fields of history, religion, and literature, but his sections on general indexes and catalogues and on the bibliography of post-Restoration law and economics should be of very considerable value to the political scientist. As rural-urban population shifts have almost subsided, however, in the long run ageing will become a problem of the urban agglomerations as well. Also the Marxist philosophical and methodological commitments of a relatively high proportion of Japanese political scientists probably have somewhat inhibited the development of separate or deviant thinking in this sphere.
