Ships passenger lists arriving in Canada 1400

Most of the inmates were evicted tenants and orphans and others left destitute by the Great Famine. Part Three Scottish Transatlantic Merchants, 1611-1785 Ships from Scotland to America. While Scots began moving to Ulster at the beginning of the seventeenth century, for most of that century the north of Ireland and the west of Scotland were less separate societies than alternate locations to which populations flocked at different times in the face of religious and political conflicts and economic woes.
