Anna Laetitia Barbauld

Falco; Ahead of Her Time: A Sampler of the Life and Thought of Mary Wollstonecraft, selected by Ella Mazel; A Vindication of the Rights of Men and A Vindication of the Rights of Woman, edited by Sylvana Tomaselli. In Mellor's view, Anna Letitia Barbauld is not a poetess. The sigh and the sob express the paralysis at the heart of Burke's beautiful, but also, like a spasm of hysteria, indicate a gasp for life, as in Amelia Opie's poem 'Consumption'.

Marjean Purinton

Ernest de Selincourt et al. These had traditionally commented, often satirically, on national events, but by the end of the 18th century were increasingly serious and personal.

The Poetess Archive

Women Romantic Poets, 1785-1832: An Anthology. The {81} act of literary communication -- the writing act and the production of a public, published text -- distances both the writer and the reader from the subjective substance that the text mediates by means of language. Clearly people bought these musical pieces to play on the piano and sing together her songs for entertainment.

The Poetess Archive

Gradiva, Frankenstein, and Wuthering Heights are connected by the power of the fetish, allegorized into that narrative which lays out bodies for burial and exhumes them as ghosts and in dreams. John Stuart Mill, The Subjection of Women, ed. In this sense, among others, it seems to me entirely valid to read in Frankenstein, as in much of Romantic women's writing, the enigmatic warning that creativity may be hazardous to one's health -- indeed to one's entire existence.

Review: [Untitled] on JSTOR

This is a brilliant piece, and it points a challenging way ahead. My only merits are my devotedness to those I love and I hope a charity towards all mankind.
