Williams, Allan 1930

Some of the greatest footballers in the world were at full stretch keeping up with the ferocity of it: Frank Lampard, Arjen Robben, Lionel Messi, even Ronaldinho.

Paul McCartney

Paul McCartney may have been exaggerating when he called this the greatest song ever written, but maybe not by much.

Paul McCartney

Two men stood out, two always seemed to have an extra second to move the ball: Claude Makelele for Chelsea, Deco for Barcelona. This idea was abandoned when the Get Back album was reworked into Let It Be, but the photo was eventually used for the cover of the 1967-1970 compilation album.

Williams, Allan 1930

In 2007 McCartney left his longtime label, EMI, and signed with Los Angeles based Hear Music. I mean, you gotta love such charming oddballism.

MARTIN SAMUEL COLUMN: Chelsea fans will only see Wayne Rooney next week if he takes Coleen shopping down the King's Road

Just a thin mattress on the floor.

I Am the Walrus

His interview actually appeared in its U.
