Ibsen's The Master Builder

ELVSTED to sit in the easy-chair beside the stove, and seats herself on one of the footstools. The floors in both rooms are covered with thick carpets. Your old friend, Eilert Lovborg, has returned to town.

Hedda Gabler

He has been here a week already. Oh Auntie—will you never be tired of making sacrifices for me! Receive it in friendship, but in silence! No, I can't make up my mind whether you mean all you say, or are simply having a joke with me. Ah, that is how a man should be! And I hear it has made some sensation! Suppose we put it there in the inner room, and then get another here in its place.
