Donoso on Liberalism, Socialism, and Catholicism

Written by Juan Donoso Cortes, one of the greatest Catholic political thinkers of all time, born in Spain in 1809. Classical liberalism takes a view of history that concentrates on the fortunes of liberty, the evolution of liberty, the way in which freedom has grown or diminished in particular times and places, the kinds of things that are necessary for it to exist, the kinds of things that are inimical to it, and those that tend to destroy it. The Catholic justification of free markets, meantime, became less convincing after the financial crisis of 2007—08.
