Edgar Lee Masters'

Nasty little Victorian Peyton Places. A reality that unfortunately was not very pleasant, but this was certainly not Masters' fault: the fact is that he was exiled from the town and removed from those people with whom he had grown up but whom he had publicly shamed. Many of the poems contain cross-references that create an unabashed tapestry of the community.

Spoon River Anthology by Edgar Lee Masters

Where are Ella, Kate, Mag, Lizzie and Edith, The tender heart, the simple soul, the loud, the proud, the happy one? The various stories are connected brilliantly--often, each participant tells his side of the story absolutely without deception and exposes the way no one can really understand what goes on in any other mind through the contradictions in the accounts.

Edgar Lee Masters'

Edgar Lee Masters was the first poet whose poetry I loved with my whole heart. . I read this because of THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING.

Spoon River Anthology Quotes by Edgar Lee Masters

So I used my Rhapsody account and listened to The Hill by Richard Buckner while reading the 244 accounts by dead people in the cemetery on the hill in Spoon River.

Masters, Edgar Lee. 1916. Spoon River Anthology

In his off time, he wrote poetry and plays with little success. All, all are sleeping on the hill. And now I know that we must lift the sail And catch the winds of destiny Wherever they drive the boat.
