Prevention Programs for Youth and Families

Recent outbreaks of communicable diseases in correctional settings e. Some have questioned the constitutionality of this practice; nonetheless, this restriction on ex-felons diminishes their ability to rebuild lifestyles as stable productive citizens in the fullest sense and also undermines the civic life of communities impacted by high felony rates. In addition, babies born to HIV positive mothers can be infected during pregnancy, in the birth canal, or through breast feeding.

Services Integration: Strengthening Offenders and Families, While Promoting Community Health and Safety

Project Bridge: Prison and Drug Detox Program, the Miriam Hospital. People now survive HIV, only to die from a smoking-related disease. Significant gaps exist between offender needs and locally available resources.

Chapter 24. Improving Services

Gonorrhea has developed resistance to nearly all of the antibiotics used for its treatment. Infected clients also are counseled on the importance of notifying their at-risk sex and needle-sharing partners and told that assistance is available to help them do that, if needed. Another might be as the director or a staff member of an existing organization that wants to expand to provide this needed service, in addition to what it does already.
