The format of scheduled monument records has changed over time.

Historic Forfar: the archaeological implications of development

The Tamworth Belt formed as a Carboniferous forearc basin and was subsequently inverted during the Hunter Bowen Event. On 25 July sent human rights observers to the site to document the human rights situation and ensure the rights of protestors were respected.

Historic Rothesay: the Archaeological Implications of Development

This should allow the exposure of the wall fabric of both nave and N aisle; it can then be observed if they are different and this difference recorded before the walls are covered up again. His two predecessors had been murdered at Halkirk, and he moved south to Dornoch.

Tarbat Discovery Programme: Bulletins

Dornoch Cathedral itself is in use as an ecclesiastical building and is also excluded from the scheduling. News from Cosquer Cave: Climatic studies, recording, sampling, dates. Its significance is increased because of the availability of documentary sources and because the graveyard retains considerable archaeological potential.

Vol 28 (2008): Early medieval settlement and ironworking in Dornoch, Sutherland excavations at The Meadows Business Park

The coffin of Richard of Moravia, brother of Gilbert, with his mutilated effigy in mail lies at the end of the nave.

Dornoch Cathedral, graveyard (SM10828)

At least two phases of excavation will be required in this sector, the first defining the medieval occupation beneath the ploughsoil and the second examining the Early Historic phases. This area will be cleaned, planned and photographed down to the first burial horizon. It is far better to seek advice before work begins, rather than have the work removed or amended at a later date.

Directions can cover a variety of minor works and might include: the replacement of doors and windows, the erection of gates, fences, garages, sheds, porches, storage tanks or the installation of satellite antennae. James Loch cleared the area to the S of the cathedral in 1811, when he also built the existing graveyard wall. It should be protected to facilitate comparison of monuments of the type on a regional and national level.
