Direction: Curriculum Planning: Outcomes

Instead of schooling decisions—such as curriculum, instructional approaches, revenues, salaries—being the purview of the national government, each state retains the legal right to most education decisions and, even then, turns many of schooling decisions to local authorities at the district level, many of whom run only one school or a small group of schools.

Improving accountability in education: the importance of structured democratic voice

The strong donor orientation may also limit a more comprehensive review of the education plan or system.

What is Outcomes

RESULTS Recall that this study aimed to produce both educational objectives and student learning outcomes. Example: Review questions — write answers and hold up slate. See Appendix 1 for a short biographical sketch of each panelist.

Curriculum evaluation

He is a professor emeritus at the University of Oklahoma, and is currently the Lawrence J. In addition, the results provide a basis for areas of concentration within the homeland security program as well as a mechanism for the continuous quality improvement of a homeland security curriculum. As the current homeland security workforce ages, there exists an anticipated need throughout the U.
