Citation: Readings in classical Chinese philosophy

When selecting this class, I was worried that my unfamiliarity with Chinese philosophy would make it difficult, but having this as a textbook made all the difference. It offers a representative and rich selection of texts from Confucius to Zhuangzi in impeccable modern translations, together with plenty of annotations, introductory explanations and useful additional material. There were moments when I found the text a bit too dry and academic.

BibGuru offers more than 8,000 citation styles including popular styles such as AMA, ASA, APSA, CSE, IEEE, Harvard, Turabian, and Vancouver, as well as journal and university specific styles. Some of the readings are a bit dense, but that's to be expected. The historic roles of individuals in a Confucius system and why Confucianism was so relevant when it was at its height.

Finally, have I in any way failed to put into practice what I teach? I highly recommend this book, it gives you insight in their writing styles, in their philosophy but I can't tell how accessible it is for true beginner but without overwhelming you with. I read this for class and probably would not have picked it up otherwise, but if you want a refresher or introduction to these philosophers I think it's a good selection of works. This is two eminent analytic Confucians' my label, not theirs anthology of selections from early Chinese philosophical classics: the Analects of Kongzi Confucius , the Mozi, the Mengzi Mencius , the Daodejing Laozi , the Zhuangzi, the Xunzi, and the Hanfeizi Han Fei.
