Audrey Wasilewski

Hart marries her leads up well.

Lies and Shadows: Hart, Pam: vivchar.tom.ru.au: Books

Not the sound your friends know or the sound of a tape played back but your voice caught in the dark cathedral of your skull, your voice heard by an internal ear informed by internal abstracts and what you know by feeling, having felt. At the outbreak of World War I, Evelyn disobeys her fath Amid the Australian Army hospitals of World War I Egypt, two deeply determined individuals find the resilience of their love tested to its limits It's 1911, and 21-year-old Evelyn Northey desperately wants to become a doctor.

The Cursed Wife: Coming soon!

By then it was long finished. I'm clearing space in my head and, poem by poem, I see and see again the crevices, the rough places that must be made plain, the plain places that want messiness. In sporting terms this miscarriage of justice and trust is the equivalent of a football referee blowing for full time in the World Cup final on 80 minutes with the score at 1-0, declaring that the victorious side won the contest fair and square.

Summer Holiday (1963)

William Brent, the doctor who did her enlistment medical, but could not enlist in the army himself because of his polio injuries.

Cliff Richard 'stole my wife' (after he'd secretly married an African princess!)

Does he grit his teeth and carry on regardless or does he challenge them for better or worse? He will not release her inheritance until she is 30 or married. Evelyn has money in a trust which would fund her studies, but her father refuses to release it. He said things that no one had ever said to me before.

The Desert Nurse by Pamela Hart

I would have protected Cliff to the end.

Alan Ritchson

In William Brent we have a genuine nice guy, with some personal hang ups to deal with.

Summer Holiday (1963)

The Desert Nurse is both heartbreakng and revealing, exposing a time when enterprising women fought to gain a place in history. Using her wit, Evelyn enlists in the army to be a nurse, where she meets the man that is to be a part of her destiny.
