THE 1992 CONGRESSIONAL HEARINGS!

It all began to feel pointless after a while. INTRODUCTION Current knowledge does not support the notion that the masticatory muscle disorders are any different from the painful muscle afflictions in other regions of the human body. No ad- verse effects were seen.

Tinnitus, TMJ, Headaches, Neck Pain, Facial Pain, etc. — Possible Treatment

Guidelines for diagnosis and management of disorders involving the temporomandibular joint and related musculoskeletal structures. Deliberate relaxation of the temporal and masseter muscles in subjects with functional disorders of the chewing apparatus.

CHAPTER 1: THE RATIONALE OF REHABILITATIVE THERAPY

The specimens are submitted in their entirety for histological exam. Acute pain is pain of short duration, from noxious disease or recent injury.

CHAPTER 1: THE EVALUATION OF JOINT TRAUMA

Then it became two, then three, then four. All experienced clinicians recognize the need to treat the entire kinematic chain and related functions involved in an injury and not a particular joint or part manifesting acute symptoms.
