Asking as it appears they use the same panel AU Optronics B173ZAN01. On a first look, this new model is much like the previous 17-inch Nitros that we reviewed in the past, yet it gets a few updates under the hood, with Kaby Lake quad-core processors, DDR4 RAM, Nvidia GTX 1060 graphics and a larger battery. We like how the keyboard is centered and well-positioned leaving enough room for the palm rest area and the upper part of the interior, which tends to get hot during load.
