Love Spicy Food? We Dare You To Try These 18 Spiciest Dishes From Around The World

Pork griot is all about acid and tang.

The fiery cuisines (1984 edition)

Sik Sik Wat is essentially hearty not to mention SPICY stew made up of a few sauces combined with meat or vegetables. The typical leaf, palm oil, or peanut soup will probably contain vast amounts of shito already, and the paste is also used to make shrimp pepper soup and goat pepper soup, two very spicy potages that can also be found on Liberian and Nigerian menus. Tom Yum A staple from Thailand, this spicy-sour soup is bound to leave you crying with a major burn in your mouth.

9 fiery hot sauces (that we love) from around the world

A fusion of cooking styles, cuisines, and ethnic foods combined to create a new type of cuisine. If you are one to happily say 'bring it on' when people challenge you to eat hot and spicy food, you know you have a love for all things spicy. The thickness and the toasted spice blend with the garlic and oregano will add great value to a basic pizza sauce.

10 of the spiciest, tongue

So the class of thick pork, seafood, or fresh tofu sundubu stews called jigaes or chigaes are brought to the table boiling and kept that way with sterno or butane flames.
