History of the Reform Movement

JESNA's goal is to make engaging, inspiring, high quality Jewish education available to every Jew in North America. Also captivated by the troubled complexities of adulthood, Lurie first made an impact in the publishing world when she wrote a of an irascible friend, who died young after defying her anti-Semitic Boston family by carrying on a love affair with a Jewish painter. Zionism in the United States

JESNA's Lippman Kanfer Institute is an action-oriented think tank for innovation in Jewish learning and engagement, focusing on designing and infusing the educational system with new ideas and approaches that enable Jewish education to respond effectively to a rapidly changing world. AIPAC, the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League are but three of the many organizations that can adequately represent the leadership of the Jewish community on issues of national security policy.
