Glasgow Botanic Gardens

The restoration involved the complete dismantling of the palace, and the removal of the parts to , for specialised repair and conservation. It was presented to Glasgow Museums in 1936 by Dr. Ruth c1880 Ruth by Giovanni Ciniselli, c1880 , traditionally said to be an ancestor of Christ, is sculpted by Milanese sculptor Giovanni Cinselli 1832-1883 who specialised in portraits of Biblical and mythological figures.

. No hungry generations tread thee down; The voice I hear this passing night was heard In ancient days by emperor and clown: Perhaps the selfsame song that found a path Through the sad heart of Ruth, when, sick for home, She stood in tears amid the alien corn; The same that oft-times hath Charmed magic casements, opening on the foam Of perilous seas, in faery lands forlorn. The Gardens moved to its current location in 1842.

“King Robert of Sicily” by George Henry Paulin (1888)

From the outside, it may look like a larger and more ornate green house not worth a second glance.
