9th International Congress of Gerontology, July 2

This report reveals how these countries are positioned to approach the transition and evaluates their preparedness. The author calls this legislation an historic event because until now legislators have never directly addressed the rights of older persons or tried to implement laws that insure respect for the elderly.

The Evolution of Gero

In considering a different cultural context, Karla Cristina Giacomini presented Dementia as a public health issue in Brazil. For one thing, members of Congress have no incentive, and definite disincentives, to frame legislation that would engender intergenerational conflict. Because of family financial necessities, we might see the return of three- and four-generation households, instead of preferred independent living arrangements.

From Compassionate Ageism to Intergenerational Conflict?

The lives of older persons can become unbearable.

World: Elder Rights: Global Action on Aging

They fear especially a serious illness or an emergent condition.

World: Elder Rights: Global Action on Aging

As their husbands retire and spend more time at home, the women are being relegated to fulltime domestic servants.
