Israel and the clash of civilisations : Iraq, Iran and the plan to remake the Middle East / Jonathan...

According to government data, some 2,600 Palestinian Bedouins are likely to have had their Israeli citizenship voided. A separate law, the 1950 Law of Return, entitles all Jews around the world to instant Israeli citizenship. There is no Hebrew language test for foreigners seeking citizenship, either Jews immigrating under the Law of Return, or non-Jewish spouses of Israeli citizens naturalising under the Citizenship Law.

Treated as foreigners BEDOUINS have been told they are eligible to apply for citizenship again through a naturalisation process, treating them effectively as foreigners. This book exposes trends and thinking in the United States and Israel with regard to the States in the Middle East, and as such is a valuable, readable account that fills in many of the gaps in recent history and press reporting on these issues. How to buy In the UK: from or In the US: from or Endorsements One of the most cogent understandings of the modern Middle East I have read.

Cook's timely book raises disturbing questions about where Israel and the US hope to push the region next. Some of the residents of Umm al-Hiran, which is currently being demolished to make way for the exclusively new Jewish community of Hiran, served as trackers for the Israeli army. He is a former staff journalist for the Guardian and Observer newspapers and has also written for The Times, Le Monde diplomatique, the International Herald Tribune, Al-Ahram Weekly and Aljazeera.

How Israel robs Palestinians of citizenship

. Given the amount of information the book contains it is somewhat surprising to consider the shortness of Cook's book.

It is superb, because the author himself is a unique witness who blows away the media debris and presents both a j'accuse of those who would destroy the lives of whole societies in their pursuit of power and myth, and a warning to the rest of us to speak up and act.
