National Deer Association

Surprisingly, less than 1 percent of deer hunters belong to a deer-related conservation organization.

Whitetail Addicts Manual: Proven Methods for Hunting Trophy Whitetail

Deer also can recognize the scent which you may use to attract them. However, the reality is that all of us can tire from doing something we love.

Mossberg Blog

The author of that article fancied himself somewhat of an expert . . . Radishes Raphanus sativus are somewhat of a newcomer to the food plot menu for whitetails. When you are using attractants such as corn and acorns, you will be presented with two options, scattering the bait over a wide area or using a feeder. Because deer are curious about their home range and often exert dominance even does in their core area, they investigate any new scent to find out which deer is leaving it.
