UK Butterflies

Shortly after this moult the colouring is greenish-white, the spiracles orange, the segments deeply wrinkled and rough, produced by the density of the hairs and their warty bases giving the surface a velvety texture. Functional explanations for personality have been proposed, but as yet, very little consideration has been given to a possible role for sexual selection in maintaining differences in personality and its stability within individuals.

Meadow Brown Butterfly and caterpillar (Maniola jurtina)

Using this species, we show that inbreeding has negative effects on offspring viability but that females do not appear to discriminate between brothers and unrelated males prior to mating. Florida Entomologist 75 4 : 493-505, 1 fig. Different species pairs are separated by qualitatively different combinations of barriers, suggesting that reproductive isolation and even the process of speciation itself may vary widely even within closely related groups.
