Cases

Judges Møse and Egorov also sat on the Bagosora et al. Reprint ed Format: Book Responsibility: Edvard Hambro Language: English Published: Leiden : A. However, state and federal judges faced with the issue have generally ignored the re-determination requirement of LaGrand, refusing to offer review and reconsideration in accordance with its terms either because the remedy sought for the Vienna Convention was considered inappropriate, or because of the procedural default rule.

The Court may exercise its functions and powers, as provided in this Statute, on the territory of any State Party and, by special agreement, on the territory of any other State. The provision appears in the Charter, and not the Statute of the ICJ, apparently to highlight the difference between the adjudicative and post-adjudicative phases in international relations. Given the fact that respondent states have assiduously argued this uncertainty as the basis for the lack of binding effect on them, a focus on final judgments may be more revealing, as the obligatory character of the decision per se is not in dispute.

In the view of the Secretary-General, such internationally recognised standards are, in particular, contained in Article 14 of the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights. The Appeals Chamber recalls that the Judges of this Tribunal and those of the ICTY are sometimes involved in several trials which, by their very nature, cover issues that overlap. In turn, a Honduran official stated in 1997 that Salvadorans were crossing the border with timber felled from now-Honduran forests, and that there were also reports of armed Salvadoran groups in delimited Honduran areas.

In the overall composition of the Chambers due account shall be taken of the experience of the judges in criminal law, international law, including international humanitarian law and human rights law. Rule 28 thus necessarily contemplates that the duty Judge will have power during normal Registry hours to deal with applications in cases which have already been assigned to a Trial Chamber.
