A List of Native American Indian Tribes

More than 20 American Indian reservations occupy about one fourth of the entire land of Arizona. Ancillary information present in of this list but no longer contained in the current listing has been included here in italics print. Namely, these include the Eastern Band of Cherokee, the Coharie, the Waccamaw-Siouan, the Sappony, the Lumbee, the Meherrin, the Haliwa-Saponi, and the Occaneechi Band of Saponi Nation.

Others want to verify a family tradition belief, fact or fiction, passed from generation to generation that they descended from an American Indian, either in their distant or near past. While trying to determine which groups were eligible for federal recognition in the 1970s, government officials became acutely aware of the need for consistent procedures. The 1744 Treaty OF Lancaster established the Appalachian Mountains as the physical boundary between the settlers and Indians.
