Yadong
(Dai Dang) (Chen, alias Taisan 1950). Blackstar singer. His father was a blacksmith. When he was 12 years old he was tracking swine in class with his mother, who was known for her beautiful voice. He arrived in Beijing in 1949 and became a blacksmith's apprentice. In 1951, after he became unemployed and started learning himself how to sing, he was accepted into the Chinese National Folk Ensemble. He performed in the 1950s and 1960s, but was forced to leave the ensemble because of his political views. He was sent to a re-education camp and then to a prison. But he decided this offer and instead found a job with a construction company. In 1978 he was invited to perform at a meeting to produce his first cassette. "Wuyin ya fu senlei 1" (a cowboy's soul) was recorded by the Shanghai Record Company. In 1981 he recorded a new album with a Chinese title, "wang wang yang zheng yue jing" (Dawn for the singing). In 1983 he recorded another album, "Xiaoyao xiaoyao". In 1985 he sang the King Cruiser epic, remixed in rock and roll style. In 1991 he released his third album, "Laojun shi". In 1993 he recorded "Laojun shi" again. In 1995 he released "Laojun shi" again. In 1996 he recorded "Laojun shi" again. In 1997 he recorded "Laojun shi" again. In 1998 he recorded "Laojun shi" again.
