O it's broken the lock and splintered the door, O it's the gate where they're turning, turning: Their boots are heavy on the floor And their eyes are burning. So, thou must eat the White Queen's meat, and all her foes are thine, And thou must harry thy father's hold for the peace of the Border-line, And thou must make a trooper tough and hack thy way to power -- Belike they will raise thee to Ressaldar when I am hanged in Peshawur. Thy father has sent his son to me, I'll send my son to him! But if he be past the of Jagai, swiftly turn ye then, For the and the of that plain is sown with Kamal's men.

The Ballad of East and West

And when they drew to the Quarter-Guard, full twenty swords flew clear— There was not a man but carried his feud with the blood of the mountaineer. The Colonel's son to the Fort has won, they bid him stay to eat -- Who rides at the tail of a Border thief, he sits not long at his meat. They will feed their horse on the standing crop, their men on the garnered grain, The thatch of the byres will serve their fires when all the cattle are slain.
