I read everything you write and always find a great deal in it that makes me to think. And many evangelicals would wonder, how exactly do we involve ourselves in conversation with such a thinker? This is a book everyone with a serious interest in theology or ethics or a concern for the mission of the church should read. Doolittle seems to have been in Europe in 1945 when Tokyo was firebombed.

It concludes with a response from Hauerwas himself. So let me just ask you. De Gruchy, , Christian Century, July 2004 James Logan, , Cross Currents, Winter 2006.

Hauerwas, Stanley :: Theology and Ethics

Hauerwas: I think that the church will be leaner and meaner and that will be a very good thing. Evangelicalism is constantly under the burden of re-inventing the wheel and you just get tired. BUT: he was charming in every regard.

Of And Fortitude: In Conversation With The by P. Linwood Urban

He actually seems to like people.
