The army, when searching for wanted men, will break into homes, usually in the middle of the night, and needlessly shoot, destroy and vandalize the contents. Politicians will only move to act when enough people threaten their precarious hold on the reins of power. Generally, the Israeli soldiers cleared out under cover of night during the curfew and thus people were denied the joy of watching the Israeli flag being lowered and folded for the last time.

Excerpted by permission of Henry Holt and Company. However, she loses some credibility by relying on revisionist historian Benny Morris for information and loses even more by failing to address Israel's security concerns as the impetus for the policies that she viciously attacks. It also stymied the flow of goods and products into and out of Gaza, making it extremely difficult to develop industry or business.
