Note: In calculating the moving wall, the current year is not counted. For insights from Operations Group on preparing for an NTC rotation, see Alan R.

Preventing the Collapse: Fighting Friction after First Contact at the National Training Center, Pt. 1

Leaders at the BCT level should never have to order a platoon or company to report, secure, and sustain themselves. The accumulation of these soldier-level tasks lead to BCT-wide friction. They may need to start with a white board or a Micro-Armor miniature model explanation followed by a walk-through.

The Certain Uncertainty: The Political Ecology of Environmental Security

They then must report according to the battle rhythm; primary, alternate, contingency, and emergency PACE communications plan; and SOP accurately and on time. For discussions of small-unit training, see Arthur Collins, Common Sense Training: A Working Philosophy for Leaders Novato, CA: Presidio Press, 1978 ; Dandridge A.

Preventing the Collapse: Fighting Friction after First Contact at the National Training Center, Pt. 1

In this situation, battalions and companies stumble into unplanned contact with the enemy, unsupported by BCT-level enablers.
