Accumulation of knowledge through research, exploration and experience. A more traditional component of this type of approach would be AAPOR sponsored events in which leaders and their staffs are given background, insights and instructions on making judgments about the quality of polls, and what types of things would be important to know regarding the assessment of the value of poll results. This Task Force Report thus has recommended that AAPOR should publicly reinforce its position that the use of information about public opinion by leaders can be constructive to decision-making processes and democracy, and that AAPOR should act to provide resources that are available to help facilitate this process when it is appropriate.
