West Germany

A law on the hiring out of manpower, passed in October 1972, contained provisions to stipulate prior authorization for the hiring out of manpower, to draw a distinction between the system governing workers hired out and the placing of workers, to regulate and improve the rights of hired out workers pertaining to working conditions and social insurance, and provide for more severe penalties and fines to be imposed on offenders. The extent of the workers' representation and impact within the supervisory board is governed by 4 different acts, namely the Co-determination Act of the Coal, Iron and Steel Industries, the Coal, Iron and Steel Co-determination Amendment Act, the 1952 Works Constitution Act and the 1976 Co-determination Act.
