Arms Trade Treaty: Pursuit for the Effective Control of Arms Transfer

Ambassador de Alba made very creditable inroads into past entrenched rituals and has helped breathe new air into the First Committee's lungs.

Chapter I

It appears there is a reasonably good chance of detecting preparations to deploy, such as construction and testing, prior to actual deployment, but it would be difficult to identify a seabed weapons system as such prior to deployment. At its seventy-fourth session, the Assembly considered the item in a debate where statements were made by the President of the Mechanism and five delegations see. The Assembly requested the Secretary-General, in consultation with the appropriate organs and agencies of the United Nations system, to prepare a report on the implementation of the resolution in the light of the purposes and principles of the Charter and international law and to submit it to the Assembly at its seventy-fifth session resolution.

International standards have been developed for the expected accuracy of material measurement in different processes, and are regularly updated.

United Nations General Assembly

The US supported inclusion of this topic in the ENDC provisional agenda, and also worked in the UN to transfer arms control aspects of seabed questions to the ENDC. We wish some assurances concerning long-term political acceptability of current USA proposals for ANC re-training.
