A letter from Edmund Burke, Esq. in vindication of his conduct, with regard to the affairs of Ireland, addressed to Thomas Burgh, Esq. Member of the Irish Parliament. (eBook, 1781) [vivchar.tom.ru]

He intended in a few days after the date of his letter to go to Paris, and to call upon you for the plans and for the books, which you had the goodness to say you had provided for us. I am, my Lord Your Grace's Most Obt.

Connecting the Edmund Rice movement

None are admitted beyond the number that can be accommodated with seats, and room at the class table. The Refectory and Kitchen are common to the Novices and to the Professed, but the former have a separate Oratory, and never associate with or speak to any of the latter. Edmund invited the Director of each house to come to a meeting at Mount Sion in August of 1817 in order to determine whether or not they wanted to pursue the course suggested by the Archbishop.

All the Brothers looked to Brother Rice with respect and reverence because he was the Founder but he had no legal authority over the brothers outside of Mount Sion and his authority there ended when his term ended. Hungry children could get food at school and their parents were helped in the evenings with classes and material to read. There are now eleven houses of the Institute in Ireland and 2 in England.
