"The Kefauver Hearings" 1950

It should be stressed that it is not the intention of TIP to raise revenue for the government, so any revenue gained would be offset by tax reductions elsewhere--perhaps on the profits tax of firms who do settle within the guidepost; they could receive credits proportional to the difference between the guidepost and their settlement. SETTING THE GUIDEPOSTS As for the criteria for setting the guideposts, there are some economic features to bear in mind, although the choice is ultimately a political one. Isard compares two cases: in the first, the firm is a profit maximizer and in the second, it follows a markup rule. PRELIMINARY ISSUES The main argument in support of the motion to dismiss is that the Settlement Act conclusively extinguished, and therefore bars, all claims based on aboriginal use or occupancy, including claims of past trespass to lands claimed by aboriginal title.
