Commonwealth of Nations

Support for the Commonwealth was twice as high in developing countries as in developed countries; it was lowest in Britain. Many of the government sources cited in this report are directly responsible for overseeing the conduct of local governments in Rivers State or for overseeing local governments' implementation of health and education policies.

Commonwealth of Nations

After recognised independence in 1980, Zimbabwe was a member of the Commonwealth until it withdrew in 2003.
The Public Accounts Committee of the House is directly responsible for receiving and acting upon those reports. Etche's primary health care coordinator told Human Rights Watch that many health centers' only supplies of medicine had expired as far back as 2000.
